Oct 6th	275	12mo dy	1st...	1,000	Printed.	1 4 0	Hemendra Prasad Ghosh, 82, Sita Rám Ghosh's Street, Calcutta.	Is a story of domestic life showing the transformation of a youth of noble sentiments and aspirations into a thoroughly unscrupulous man of the world. Atul Chandra's unexpected marriage with Sudhāmāyī put all ideas of reform out of his head, and he almost regretted that he had not married earlier in life. He began to love his wife dearly, but the girl who had bestowed her heart on Bhavessa, her husband's nephew, was unable to return his love. A letter addressed by her to Bhavessa accidentally fell into Atul's hand and led to the discovery of her passion for him. The discovery made the girl's life miserable and accelerated the moral downfall of the husband, who in his desire to be avenged on the world became indifferent as to how he treated those whom destiny had placed in his power. At last Sudhāmāyī made a final effort to forget her early love and be faithful to her husband. She thought she would, if forgiven, turn over a new leaf in her life. But her husband had lost all faith in woman, and treated her overtures with contempt and derision. The girl took this to heart and committed suicide. The incident caused only a temporary qualm of conscience in Atul, and failed to have any lasting effect on his character and conduct; which grew worse every day until the moral wreck of the man was complete. The delineation of the characters of Atul, Sudhāmāyī and Bhavessa discloses considerable power in the writer. The style of the book is, on the whole, fairly good.	7184
Sept. 10th	262	16mo dy	5th...	500	Printed.	1 2 0	.....	Based on Wilkie Collins's Woman in White.	7185
Aug. 30th	98	16mo dfo.	1st...	1,000	ditto ...	0 8 0	The author, Baroda, Guzrat.	Is the story of a Sikh volunteer's adventures in the Afridi country. Nehālehānd joined the Afridi expedition of 1898 as a volunteer from Pātialā.	7186
One evening after hostilities had commenced he chanced to come across an Afridi girl and her companion, and rescued them from a party of Gurkha soldiers into whose hands they had fallen. He next voluntarily escorted them to a place of safety and took his rest for the night in a cave which was shown to him. The girl on taking her leave, gave Nehāl, out of gratitude, a takti or a triangular piece of metal, which she wore on her neck, as a sort of passport, which was to secure him against molestation at the hands of her countrymen. But this act excited the jealousy of her companion Abdul, who was an aspirant after her hand; and when the morning dawned Nehālehānd found himself a prisoner at the hands of the Afridi. He was taken to the chief, whose daughter Hāmīdā he had saved from dishonour, charged with the theft of the takti, and condemned to be shot. Of the three guns fired at him, two had bullets previously extracted out of them by Hāmīdā, and it was the shot from the third gun, which was fired by Abdul that wounded Nehālehānd and he was left for dead. Secretly removed to Hāmīdā's quarters, he was nursed to recovery by the girl and conveyed by her through a secret passage to the frontiers of the Afridi country. Here they stopped for a talk and revealed their passion for each other. Nehālehānd was for taking the girl home and marrying her according to the rites of the Sikh religion. But Hāmīdā would not allow the claims of love to interfere with her duty by her father, country and religion, and rejected her lover's proposal with firmness and indignation. At last as they were about to part, the ungrateful Abdul, who had followed them both unperceived, hurled a lance at Nehāl; but Hāmīdā interposed, and received a mortal wound. Thereupon, she turned on Abdul and stabbed him to death. Their death closed the scene and Nehālehānd started for the British camp with a heavy heart. The author is not without power, and the characters of Nehālehānd and Hāmīdā are fairly well drawn. The book is written in a racy, vigorous, though incorrect and Anglicised, style.

Containing a short life of the late Rai Bankim Chandra Báhádur, a critical estimate of his writings and their influence on Bengali language and literature, and a defence of his style and language as compared with those of the Pandits. The writer's admiration for the great novelist has apparently blinded him to the numerous faults and shortcomings of his style, and the book cannot be accepted as a specimen of high class literary criticism in Bengali.	7200

" 28th	117	16mo d. cr.	1st...	1,000	ditto ...	.....	Viavesvar Sen, 75-2, Bhuvan Mohan Sarkar's Lane, Calcutta.	Is a story of disappointed love told in highly emotional and imaginative prose. The author, or whoever he may be, who tells the story in the first person, seems to have secretly made love to a Brahmin girl and won her heart. At last the discovery of the love affair put a stop to their secret interviews, and led to increased restrictions being put on the movements of the girl by her elder brother. As they were of different castes their marriage was out of the question, and in vain did they cherish their passion for each other until the girl pined away, and nothing was left for her unfortunate lover but to harp on his ill luck and disappointment and to vent his spleen on a social system, which by putting a stop to intermarriages of castes, has proved the root of all his misfortunes. The book, though containing here and there passages which arrest attention on account of the poetry which they contain, illustrates the vices of spinning out a theme and the affectation of false sentimentalism, which have become quite a feature of the Bengali literature of the day.	7242
Oct. 3rd	509	8vo dy	1st...	1,000	ditto ...	1 8 0	Satis Chandra Ray Chaudhuri, Baraha Nagar.	Attempts to trace the history of the social changes in Bengal, through the re-establishment of Brahmanism by Adisur, the institution of Kulinism by Ballāl, the establishment of a Kāyastha community at Bāklā in East Bengal by Danujamardan, the reformation of Brahman and Kāyastha communities of Rai and Varendra during the 15th and the 16th century by Udayan, Devīvar, Paramānanda Rāy and Purandar Khan, the rise and fall of Pratāpāditya and the constitution of an independent Kāyastha community by him at Jessore, the disruption of that community on his death and the establishment on its ruin of the Kāyastha families of Panda and Tāki. Excepting the earlier chapters, the book may be regarded as an account of the various Kāyastha families of Bengal, which came into prominence from time to time from the death of Lakshman Sen down to the establishment of British rule in the country; and references to historical and social matters found in it are, speaking generally, only incidental. The writer is a Kāyastha by caste and a scion of the Munai family of Tāki, and this accounts for his attempt to treat his castemen as possessing social rank footing almost equal to that of the Brahmans and for the comparatively large space which the history of the Munai family occupies in it. Though the history and chronology of the early part of the book will not bear examination, it contains nevertheless an interesting mass of information which may be turned to account by the future historian of Bengal.	7243

.....	130	.....	1st...	.....	ditto ...	0 12 0	.....	States that āmitva, egoism or self love, is the root of all evil in this world, and hence its annihilation is taught in the śāstras as the means of attaining the summum bonum. Now, this annihilation can be effected not only by foregoing all love of self, but also by extending it indefinitely to non-self; or in other words, not only by not loving self, but also by loving others like self. And all pre-eminently Hindu institutions like the five āśramas, the four āśramas and the four castes have all been framed with a view to attaining this very object, and lead when the duties and injunctions relating thereto are obeyed in practice, to more or less liberalisation of a person's sympathies and the increase of love for others. Let all Hindus, therefore, remember this cardinal teaching of the śāstras and carry it out in life by consecrating themselves to the service of their fellow-creatures. The book is exceedingly well-written, and its altruistic teaching cannot fail to have a salutary and ennobling effect on the reader.	7271

Sept. 29th	171	.....	1st...	2,200	ditto ...	2 0 0	P. C. Das:	Is an interesting and eventful biography of the Bengali Lieutenant in the Brazilian Army named Sures Visvâs, describing his early life, conversion to Christianity, sojourn in various lands in quest of service, struggles in London, in the course of which he served successively as a news-boy, a street porter, a pedlar and a wild beast-tamer, also of his journey to Buenos Ayres, when he joined the Brazilian Army, his bravery on the field of battle, promotion to a Lieutenantship and brilliant success in the battle of Natheroy. The book derives its main interest from the fact of its being the life of a Bengali, so unique in character and so unlike that of his peaceful and easeloving countrymen.	4584

July 5th	20	8vo cr.	1st...	1,000	ditto ...	.....	.....	Teaches that all religious instruction in order to be real and efficacious must flow from a Sat Guru (good preceptor), who like Jesus and Chaitanya himself derived it from the same source. The Sat Guru is like the sun, and from him alone must emanate all vivifying rays of spiritual knowledge and instruction. It is a mistake to think that one can derive true knowledge from the Gospel or the sástras without the interpretation of a Sat Guru. For no one can read their true meaning without his help. The belief that salvation is to come after death is a myth. For when it really comes it comes in this very life and those receiving it realise it in their consciousness. The author is a follower of Chaitanya, and has set up as a religious teacher, having a number of disciples among low caste people.	4628
Sep. 7th	72	12mo dy	1st...	500	Printed.	0 8 0	The author, 3, Ramánáth Majumdá's Street, Calcutta.	The title sufficiently indicates the nature of the contents.	4629
Sep. 25th	40	8vo cr.	1st...	1,000	ditto ...	0 8 0	The author, 1, Old Post Office Street, Calcutta.	The substance of this work may be given in the following words:—"Worship in love God who is formless and yet all the forms, who is all that moves and all that moves not, who is the all-comprehending Being expressed as light. Facing the sun and moon, when they rise and when they set, bow down to Him, the author of good, uniting yourselves to His all-comprehending completeness. Let each one out of his earthly possessions feed God in His form of fire and fulfil the needs of all his creatures. Endeavour always to keep the mind, body, earth, water, and air pure and clean. This is pleasant in the sight of God and the duty of all men, especially those in power. Thus acting man will be happy now and for ever. Nothing more is required of any one. Too many ceremonies lead to suffering."	4630

Is a religious allegory in verse by Jagatram Dās, describing a soul's struggles with the forces of ignorance and his attainment of true knowledge at the end. The author was a Brahmin by caste and Vaiṣṇav of the Rāmāyat sect by religion. The doctrines taught by him in the course of the book are those of metempsychosis and the operation of the kārmic law in the evolution of higher from the lower forms of birth. As a Vaiṣṇav, he naturally gives to bhakti (love of God) the highest place among the means of attaining perfect self-culture.	2639

tion of Heritage in the Viváda Ratnákár, which is an exhaustive and authoritative compilation on the civil and criminal law of the Hindus. It was prepared by Chandesvar Thákur, who was Peace and War Minister to the King Haradeva of Mithilá and who was, according to his own account, living in the early part of the 14th century. The English introduction to the translation gives an account of the codes of Manu and Yajñavalkya, dwells on some of the distinctive features of Hindu law and jurisprudence, and incidentally touches on matters relating to the administration of justice in this country by English Judges. Speaking generally the translators have done their work fairly well, and the book cannot fail to be a substantive help in the elucidation of the Hindu Law of Inheritance in the Mithilá School.

navism and Christianity, furnishing instances, as the writer thinks, of an actual historical contact between the two cults in the fourth or the fifth century of the Christian era. The writer thinks that Vaishnavism has developed on lines of its own, viz., on the basis of a half-philosophical, half-mythological synthesis of the Sāṅkhya and Vedānta systems, while Christianity very early forsook Platonism, Neo-platonism and Gnosticism, and received its philosophical mould from the metaphysical and ontological scheme of Aristotle, as understood by schoolmen and Arabian philosophers; that the Christian experiences of Indian Vaishnavas served to liberalise and universalise their faith, and perhaps also to impart a character of jealous, if not militant, unitarianism (ekāntībhāva) to the cult of Krishna-worship. The attempt made in the Sāṅdilya Sūtra to support the Ekānti doctrine by the authority of the Gītā goes to show that, as a feature of Vaishnavism, such unitarianism needed the countenance of the canonical Hindu scriptures. But it is at the same time clear that not a single dogma or rite was borrowed by Indian Vaishnavas from primitive Christianity. As comparative researches, when not supplemented by the historic method and the study of origin and development, are of no value in the determination of historical relations, the writer professes to have applied comparison and analogy under the necessary corrections, and arrived at the conclusion that while Vaishnavism and Christianity have originated and developed in practical independence of each other, they must be acknowledged to be different manifestations in different race histories of the same religious idea or type. The introductory remarks on the alleged insufficiency of the ordinary historic method of the West to grapple with the complexities of social phenomena, the corrections which the writer proposes to apply to it, so as to make it fit for the investigation of such phenomena, the deficiencies and shortcomings of the modern European philosophy and the causes, which bar its further progress and the part which, as the author thinks, Vaishnavism is destined to play in the European renaissance of the coming century, show the depth and range of his reading and bespeak an originality of conception and breadth of view, which are really striking. His main position about an historical contact between the two cults must, nevertheless, be pronounced improbable and unproved.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h., and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beekley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

EDUCATIONAL NOTICE.

Examination of Candidates for Pleaderships and Mukhtarships in Mofussil Courts Subordinate to the High Court.

The next examination of candidates for Pleaderships will be held on the 21st, 22nd and 23rd February next in the Senate House of the Calcutta University.

The next examination of candidates for Mukhtarships will be held at Calcutta, Gauhati and Sylhet on the 21st and 22nd February. The examination of those candidates who have applied to be examined in Calcutta will take place in the Senate House of the Calcutta University.

The Pleaderships candidates will be examined viva voce only on the 21st February, commencing at 10 A.M., and two papers will be set each day for them at 10 A.M. and 2 P.M., respectively, on the 22nd and 23rd February. Two papers will be set for the Mukhtarships candidates on the 21st February, at 10 A.M. and 2 P.M., respectively, and they will be examined viva voce on the 22nd February, commencing at 10 A.M.

Under no circumstances will any candidate be admitted to the examination room after these hours.

The candidates will be required to produce at the examination the extract from the register which will be furnished to them by the District Judge, through whom the applications have been sent to the Board of Examiners.

No candidate will be allowed to enter the examination room with any memoranda or loose papers of any description (with the exception of the extracts above mentioned).

All writing materials will be provided with the exception of pens which the candidates must bring with them.

W. GRAHAM,

Offg. Secy. to the Board of Examiners for Pleaderships and Mukhtarships.

THE MONSOON OF 1899.

The following report is published for general information.

F. A. SLACK,

The 8th January 1900.

METEOROLOGICAL SUMMARY FOR THE MONSOON PERIOD OF 1899.

THE following remarks are intended to form the usual brief introduction to the rainfall tables which give full information regarding the rainfall measured during the south-west monsoon months in all parts of the province. Only the more important features of the general atmospheric conditions are discussed, and these only when they show a tendency favourable or unfavourable to rainfall.

Cold-weather storms had begun earlier than usual, with the result that weather in January was more unsettled than in February, the reverse being of most frequent occurrence. The unsettled weather which was a noticeable feature in December of the previous year continued during the first two weeks of January, one depression following another at short intervals of one or two days with more or less general rainfall. This period of disturbance was followed by fine and exceptionally cold weather, which continued with but one small interruption till the end of the month.

Rainfall was heavier than usual in January, but there was a considerable falling off during February in all parts of the province, except East Bengal, which received nearly double the normal amount.

Following the settled and comparatively warm weather in February, well marked hot-weather conditions prevailed during March. The pressure distribution was at times very uniform with light winds, and there were only two occasions when southerly winds became strong in the north of the Bay and in Bengal. The strong winds were due to a steep pressure gradient resulting from a rapid fall of pressure over the province. Rainfall was much lighter than usual in the western and central districts. But in Assam there was heavy rain, a fact which may be partly accounted for by the rainfall commencing in the north-east and extending south-westwards. Sibsagar received 5·88, Silchar 5·48, Dhubri 2·16, and on an average North Bengal 1·36 inches.

Weather was more unsettled than usual during the greater part of April, the daily changes of the various meteorological elements showing the irregularity which accompanies the establishment of pre-monsoon conditions. These pre-monsoon conditions had probably commenced in Assam as early as some time in March, and they became well defined in April both in Assam and East Bengal. Further, they extended westward more over the province than in ordinary years.

The chief result of this exceptional development was noticeable in there being more cloudy rainy weather than usual in all parts of the province, except North Bengal, with continued low temperature. A further sign of the early advance of monsoon weather in the east of the Bay was the formation of a small cyclonic storm over the Andaman sea towards the end of April, a most exceptional occurrence so early in the year.

Usually in April rainfall is caused by the passage westward over the province of shallow depressions, which, causing quick changes in the wind circulation, are accompanied by thunderstorms. It is not difficult in such cases to follow the changes of pressure and winds and the resulting rainfall distribution, but during the past year the changes of pressure, though at times large, were so irregular that the connection, so far as could be gathered from observations taken over so limited an area as Bengal, were difficult to reconcile with the usual easterly motion of a widespread shallow depression. The rainfall also was difficult to account for, as it began in the north-east and extended south-westward.

It appears probable that a pressure change occurred which has been noticed at times in former years. When a depression is approaching the province from the west and is beginning to be felt in the western districts, a rapid rise of pressure at times begins in the north-east in Assam and North Bengal, and spreading westward and south-westward checks the eastward movement of the depression. Some such change as this was observed at the beginning of the period of rainy weather in the second week of April. Pressure was falling over the province on the 5th and 6th, and a shallow depression was shown over Chota Nagpur. On the 6th pressure was rising at Sibsagar, on the 7th there was a rapid rise over the province, and the depression had become diffused over the south-western districts and the west of the Bay. Simultaneously with the rise of pressure rain began to fall in Assam, the rainfall area extending south-westward, till on the 10th it included the whole province.

It will be seen from the above that at the beginning of May weather conditions were very exceptional, and that from the point of view of the south-west monsoon they were considerably in advance of their usual time of development.

These exceptional features continued well marked during May, as for at least half of that month weather, such as occurs in the south-west monsoon season, prevailed with at times heavy rain. After the cyclonic storm in the south-east of the Bay, which caused strong winds in that area at the end of April and for a day or two in May, and later in the eastern parts of the province, two shallow depressions of the south-west monsoon type formed in the north-west angle of the Bay. The first of these began about the 13th and moved westward across Orissa, causing heavy rain during its passage and practically general rainfall in all parts of the Province. The second shallow depression began on the 19th near Gopalpur. Moving north-eastward, it was well defined near Saugor Island on the 20th, and on the following day over East and North Bengal, with a centre between Bogra and Sirajganj. Though causing little increase in wind force, the disturbance was everywhere accompanied by heavy rainfall. On the 20th Saugor Island reported 6 inches, and in the course of 24 hours partly in the 20th, and partly in the 21st, the same amount fell at Calcutta. Many stations in Bengal Proper received heavy falls on the 21st, and even in Bihar and Chota Nagpur, notwithstanding the easterly movement of the depression, rain fell in considerable quantity.

The area of heavy rainfall in May included the north of Orissa, the greater part of South-West Bengal, the whole of East Bengal, and a large portion of the northern half of North Bengal. East Bengal and Orissa received considerably more than the normal fall for the month.

The comparatively dry weather which prevailed over the west of the province in the early part of June was more of the nature of a break in the rains, and it came to an end in consequence of the formation of a shallow land depression about the 10th, such as not unfrequently forms in July and August in ordinary monsoon seasons. Though the depression filled up soon after its first appearance, it caused the showery weather which had been continuous in the eastern districts to extend westward over the province, and from about the 13th ordinary monsoon weather became established in the central districts, Bihar, and Chota Nagpur.

No cyclonic disturbance occurred over the Bay throughout June, but towards the end of that month a shallow depression formed in the north-east over Assam and North Bengal. The depression was too shallow to cause a regular cyclonic circulation of winds, which, however, being light, were readily affected by small changes of pressure. Such changes as followed were of an oscillatory character, upwards in the east, downwards in the west, and vice versa and being followed by frequent shifts of winds, heavy general rain fell in all parts of the province except the south-west.

The rainfall was due to local disturbances, irregular in distribution, and in places much above the normal amounts. The heaviest falls during June, relative to the normal, were in Chota Nagpur and Bihar, and Orissa was the only division which received less than the normal amount.

Weather during July possessed the same remarkable features as in June, especially in the non-occurrence of cyclonic storms over the Bay and the continuous low pressure over the province, Assam, and Burma. As no depression of any depth passed inland from the sea, the variations of pressure were never more than moderate in amount; but as the defect was continuous and westerly winds prevailed over the western districts, the moist southerly winds from the Bay, which were quite up to average strength, failed to obtain the usual outlet north-westward up to the Gangetic plain. The result was general heavy rainfall over the greater part of the province, especially in Bihar, with a more irregular distribution than in ordinary years.

The part of the province where deficient falls occurred was naturally in the south-west, where the drier south-westerly land winds prevailed. The deficiency was, however, in nearly all cases small, as may be seen from Orissa receiving on an average for the whole division 99 per cent. of the normal, and Chota Nagpur 110 per cent., the excess in the latter being due to the heavier falls in the north of the Division.

A very noticeable peculiarity in the rainfall distribution in that month was that in submontane districts, whether in the east or north of the province, and probably over the lower ranges of the hills, falls were in almost all cases in slight defect, whereas at higher levels, as in the Darjeeling hills, there was a fairly large excess. A marked contrast was shown between Baxa and Darjeeling, at the former of which there was defect of 16 inches, and at the latter excess of 11 inches.

The slight deficiency extended along the foot of the Himalayas as far as Darbhanga, but from there excess steadily increased, and was greatest in Champaran and Bettiah.

Though no cyclonic storm occurred over the Bay in July, land depressions were not wanting, as in the previous month. Two such disturbances developed in the early part of the month, and moving westward caused heavy rain during their passage; and after the middle of the month a slight depression formed over the north-west of the province, with a fairly regular cyclonic circulation of light winds. The monsoon winds from the Bay were not so strong as in the early part of the month, but the cyclonic circulation and a slight oscillatory movement of the area of lowest pressure were sufficient to maintain continuous rainfall in all except the south-western districts for some days. A rapid fall of pressure towards the end of the month was followed by another slight depression about the 25th, and further heavy rain fell in Bihar, after which high pressure was restored and became an important feature of the weather conditions, not only for the remaining days of July, but well into August. In consequence of this higher pressure in the north, such depressions as formed in August began over the Bay, and instead of moving northwards across Lower Bengal, they first moved westward into Central India, and recurving there, they entered the province in the north-west. The result of the course taken by these disturbances, two in number—one about the middle and the other towards the end of the month—was less rain in the south-western districts and continued heavy falls in the northern districts.

The depression which formed over the north of the Bay about the beginning of the second week of August caused squally weather over a wide sea area between the 10th and 12th. It crossed Orissa and recurved in Central India, approaching the western boundary of Bihar about the 15th. Between the 15th and 18th the depression moved slowly eastwards, causing heavy rainfall, which was not, however, so regular in its distribution as usual. The heavier falls were to the north of the area of lowest pressure. South Bihar and the north of Chota Nagpur received much less rain than North Bihar, and even in North Bengal the contrast was well marked till the disturbance broke up, when, as usually happens, thunderstorms became more general, with numerous heavy falls.

Except during the two periods of disturbance rainfall was not heavy or general, but no well marked break occurred during August. Rainfall was lighter and more local in the early part of the month, and again for a few days about the end of the third week. The total fall for the month was in large excess in Bihar and North and East Bengal and in large defect in Chota Nagpur and Orissa.

Two depressions formed over the Bay in September, and like all the others during the present season they ultimately filled up in the north of the province.

The first crossed the coast of the Circars in a westerly direction. Recurving, it moved northwards till it reached the North-West Provinces, after which its motion was eastward. Though by the time it affected weather conditions in Bihar the depression had become very shallow, still it caused, during its eastward advance across Bihar and North Bengal, heavy general rainfall for several days. Practically the only rainfall which was received during September in the extreme west of Bihar was due to this disturbance. Between the 15th and 18th there occurred the greater part of the total fall for the month in Shahabad, Saran, and Champaran, amounting on an average to 5 inches.

The second disturbance began about the 18th, probably in the south of the Bay, and moving northwards developed into a cyclonic storm of moderate severity before the centre crossed the Bengal coast near Saugor Island. Inland the depression remained well defined till the centre was near Malda at 8 A.M. on the morning of the 24th, after which it rapidly filled up and had entirely disappeared by the following day.

The most noteworthy features of the disturbance were connected with the rainfall—

- (1) in its being unusually heavy in parts of the track of the central area, more especially in the phenomenal fall in the Darjeeling Hills, on approaching which the disturbance broke up and in a few hours ceased to exist;

- (2) in the area of heavy rain being much further north than the area of low pressure, as shown by the cyclonic circulation of winds and the pressure distribution.

The rainfall which began on Saturday, the 23rd, in Lower Bengal was maintained during the 24th and part of the 25th in the Himalayas in consequence of the disturbance reaching the hilly region as a well defined depression of moderate depth, and thereafter breaking up in an exceptionally short time, an occurrence which is invariably attended by heavy rainfall, generally over a much wider area than that immediately under the influence of the cyclonic wind circulation.

As in August, the south-western districts received less than the usual amount and North and East Bengal and Bihar more, though not to the same extent as in the previous month. Excess in Bihar was only 2 per cent.

Weather during the greater part of October was of the kind usual at the end of the monsoon season, with pressure above the normal and northerly winds fairly frequent and continuous, especially in the eastern districts. Temperature differed but little from the normal, and the sky was generally cloudless or lightly clouded, with an almost complete absence of rainfall, the only exception being fairly numerous light showers in North Bengal. In the western districts exceptionally dry weather prevailed, so that over a wide area, including Chota Nagpur and the greater part of Bihar, the rainfall for October was largely below the normal. On an average for these two divisions only 34 per cent. of the usual fall was received.

There were two occasions of disturbed weather, which continued for about three days each time. The first was in the middle of the month, the second towards the end, and they were both due to depressions, which beginning in the south of the Bay moved northwards or north-eastwards and passed over Southern and Eastern Bengal. Cloudy rainy weather obtained during these periods of disturbance over a great part of the Province and heavy rainfall over considerable tracts of country, chiefly in Orissa, East Bengal, and Arakan.

In both storms the most marked features were the light winds in the north of the Bay and the very heavy rainfall, which was irregularly distributed with regard to the central area of the depressions—features which were noticeable in the case of the previous disturbance, which caused the heavy rainfall in the Darjeeling Hills towards the end of September.

In consequence of the continued tendency for the cyclonic disturbances to move towards the north or north-east, the distribution of rainfall was more irregular than usual in October. Over a great part of Chota Nagpur less than 1 inch fell, and the average for the Division was 1 inch as compared with the normal fall of 2·94 inches. In the west of Bihar falls were generally less than half an inch, and only a few stations in any part of the Division received more than 1 inch. These were mostly in the Hajipur and Tajpur districts, where heavy falls of more than 2 inches were general on the 28th. The average fall for the whole of Bihar for October was slightly under 1 inch and about one-third of the normal fall.

Towards the south east of the Province falls increased considerably in amount, especially in East Bengal, in the southern part of which they varied from 10 to more than 25 inches. In the north-east also heavy rain fell, the heaviest being 19 inches at Buxa and 14 inches at Bhagalpur.

The chief features of the past monsoon season are—

- (1) Weather has been unusually settled over the north of the Bay throughout the season. When depressions occurred, winds never increased to the strength usual on such occasions.
- (2) Typical monsoon weather began much earlier than usual, and prevailed over the Province during a considerable part of May.
- (3) During the early part of the usual monsoon season, that is, in June and July, pressure remained low in the north and east of the Province, and partly owing to shallow land depressions and irregular pressure oscillations with light variable winds, heavy rain was general except in Orissa.

(4) During the latter half depressions forming in the Bay moved almost without exception northward or north-eastward before filling up, and caused heavy rainfall over considerable parts of the Province chiefly in the north and east. On one occasion heavy rain fell in Orissa in October.

(5) Excessive rainfall occurred throughout the season in East and North Bengal and part of Bihar:—

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore .003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 2.3 lower; and, finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0.6 higher than the Kew Standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL GENERAL ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE RAJSHAHÍ DIVISION FOR THE YEAR 1898-99.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS.

Calcutta, the 15th January 1900.

RESOLUTION—No. 226.

READ—

The Annual General Administration Report of the Rajshahi Division for the year 1898-99.

THE Division was in the charge of Mr. P. Nolan, except for a period of three months, during which Mr. C. J. O'Donnell officiated for him.

The tours of the Commissioner were full, including the inspection of all the district head-quarters, except Bogra, and special attention was devoted by him to the Duars. Those of the District Officers were of the normal length, and appear to have been well arranged. The Subdivisional Officers of Sirajganj might have been out much more, and the reason assigned by the Commissioner is not accepted, since it would appear that one of the officers was in charge all through the cold weather.

The Collectors of Rangpur and Bogra failed to inspect their treasuries more than once, the former being debarred by ill-health. The failure of six Subdivisional Officers to inspect the sub-treasuries twice in the year is not explained, and the Commissioner is desired, in the absence of a satisfactory explanation, to draw the attention of the officers to the necessity of carrying out the standing orders.

2. Weather and Crops: Prices: Material condition of the people: Public health.—The rainfall exceeded the average in all districts, save Jalpaiguri, where the deficiency was but slight, though the Deputy Commissioner reports that its unsuitable distribution affected the well-being of the crops. Elsewhere the winter rice was very good, a bumper crop being reaped in Dinajpur, Rajshahi, and Bogra. As in the rest of Bengal, the year was exceptionally healthy, cholera, in particular, decreasing notably. There was a slight falling off in the number of vaccination cases and a marked increase in those of deaths from small-pox. Wages were unchanged, and the abundant harvests gave cheap food. In short, the Commissioner has summed up as follows:—

This year the crops were good, the price of food low, and the death-rate diminished: I infer that the condition of the people was much above the average.

The Commissioner comments as follows on the careless manner in which the returns of wages have in some cases been prepared:—

It is said, for instance, that a superior mason received during the last week in March from five annas three pies to twelve annas a day, a common mason from three annas nine pies to ten annas, the margin of difference being great enough to destroy the value of the statement.

The Lieutenant-Governor desires that more attention should generally be paid to this point in the preparation of the prices of labour and commodities.

3. Manufactures, Mines, and Commerce.—The yield of silk is reported to have been 155,452 lbs. as compared with 135,831 lbs. in the previous year. The outturn of the jute hand-presses diminished very considerably. The number of tea-gardens decreased, but the area in Jalpaiguri under both mature and immature plants was much larger, as was the gross yield. The yield of the Government cinchona plantations is returned as 236,098 lbs. as compared with 318,715 lbs. in the preceding year, the decrease being due to the smaller requirements for the drug. The output of the Daling coal mine again increased very considerably.

The principal trade of the Division is with Calcutta, and the figures relating to the general trade do not include that which is conveyed by river steamers. This omission vitiates any comparison of the total volume of trade with that of previous years, and at the same time conceals the extent to which the river traffic is passing from the control of the country boats to the steam-ship companies.

The exports to Calcutta consist almost entirely of agricultural products, and differed in the year in question from the preceding one, mainly in the enormous increase in food-grains and the great falling off in jute, both raw and in the form of gunny-bags. Of the imports from Calcutta, there was a great increase in the quantity of European piece-goods and European cotton twist and of gunny-bags. The import of kerosine oil increased in all districts, except Rangpur and Pabna. In the case of the latter, which includes the trade of Sirajganj, the falling off amounted to more than a lakh of maunds, for which the Commissioner has not been able to find an explanation. The total volume of trade (exclusive of the steam-ship traffic) shows a decrease of four lakhs of maunds in both imports and exports. The route by the Nadia rivers is now little used, but there was a great increase in the exports through the canals.

4. Civil Justice.—The number of civil suits disposed of in the year rose from 62,855 to 68,048. The increase, which was confined to money and rent suits, was most marked in Rangpur, and Pabna alone showed a falling off, while the figures in Darjeeling were stationary. The Commissioner attributes the results to the comparative prosperity of agriculture in the year. The proportion of witnesses kept over two days was slightly less than before, but in the Courts of the Subordinate Judges 19 per cent. were so detained.

5. Crime: Criminal Administration: Police.—The total number of cognisable crimes fell from 18,277 to 17,334, and that of non-cognisable offences rose from

8,673 to 9,577. The experience of the Division was, therefore, the same as that of the rest of the Province. Moreover, the cognisable offences, when analysed, disclose an increase in offences against the public tranquillity, the person, and special laws (as well as under the head of nuisances), and a most marked decrease in those against property. The inference to be drawn is that the spirit of lawlessness engendered by the recent scarcity has had a more lasting influence than would have been expected. This is more markedly apparent from the figures relating to the returns of cognisable offences for the last eight years, which are as follows :—

Year.		Total.	Offences against public tranquillity.	Serious offences against the person.	Minor offences against the person.
1891	...	13,499	379	662	346
1892	...	14,277	351	637	337
1893	...	14,096	337	568	345
1894	...	14,558	375	608	392
1895	...	15,273	339	617	290
1896	...	15,477	327	634	271
1897	...	18,277	599	1,047	482
1898	...	17,344	639	1,127	479

The causes of the great increase in the last two years of offences against the person and against the public tranquillity have not been explained, and the Lieutenant-Governor, whilst meantime inviting the attention of the District Officers to the fact, looks forward with interest to the statistics of the current year.

The Stipendiary Magistrates disposed of 7,639 cases compared with 7,574 in the previous year, and the percentage of persons convicted was 52·3. The Courts of the Honorary Magistrates disposed of 1,212 cases, or 155 less than last year. The detention of witnesses in these Courts, to which attention was drawn last year, has diminished, though the evil is still excessive in Rangpur, Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri. The results of appeals from both classes of Courts were more favourable to the convicts than in the previous year. The remands in "A" cases showed some relative improvement. The number of bad livelihood cases increased, and the proportion of convictions was slightly greater. The percentage of convictions in Sessions cases was also higher. The Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to observe some improvement in the attendance of the Honorary Magistrates in the last year, but the fact that the members of the Benches of Rangpur, Nator and Bogra were so repeatedly absent without leave calls for explanation.

On the whole, the disposal of criminal work appears to have been more effective than in the previous year; but, as the Commissioner has remarked, the average amount of work per officer is very small compared with other parts of Bengal.

The Commissioner has expressed no opinion on the conduct of the police, nor has he reported those of the District Officers, but it appears that the charges of extortion made against them increased to 28. Of these, however, only three resulted in convictions. One inspector of police was dismissed for complicity in the embezzlement of Government money.

The chaukidars appear to have been on the whole liberally rewarded and as freely punished, though the divergences in the practice of the various districts are as marked as usual, and the Lieutenant-Governor must again insist on a more careful control by the Commissioner of the vagaries in this matter of the District Officers. Nothing has been said by the Commissioner in continuation of the interesting remarks contained in last year's report on the progress made in the organisation of dafadari circles and the most suitable punishments for erring chaukidars; and the subject of chaukidari assessment, to which attention was drawn in last year's Resolution, has escaped notice.

6. Land Revenue and Cesses.—The current demand of land revenue was Rs. 52,57,361, the increase of Rs. 43,572 over that of the previous year being due to the resettlement of the Jaipur Government estate and in the Darjeeling Terai, and to new cultivation in Jalpaiguri. The collections, which amounted to Rs. 51,99,700, were inferior to those of last year, and the outstanding balance (excluding Rs. 5,319 remitted) increased from Rs. 1,71,309 to Rs. 2,26,264, or 4·3 per cent. On the whole, however, the results were fair, especially in respect of arrear collections, which were complete in both permanently and temporarily-settled estates, and very creditable in the Jalpaiguri and Darjeeling directly-managed estates. In Bogra and Pabna, where the united demand from this class of estates is about one-fifth of that of Jalpaiguri, the arrears not collected were more than double those of that district. Current collections in permanently-settled estates were good in all districts, but those in farmed estates were poor in Rangpur and Pabna, because the farmers experienced no unpleasantness in pursuing the practice of making Government wait for the rent. It is hoped that the recent enquiries of the Board into this question will lead to reform. Current collections in directly-managed estates were poor in Pabna and only moderate in Bogra. In Jalpaiguri they were very bad, amounting to only 56·3 per cent. of the current demand. The Commissioner has refused to entirely accept the local explanations, and has ascribed the failure in part to defective management at the tahsils of Mainaguri and Falakata, and in consequence changes have been made which, it is hoped, will accelerate collections and improve the staff. The number of sales of estates for arrears of land revenue was 24 only. The Commissioner considers that the number of defaults in permanently-settled estates is excessive in Pabna, where, as will appear from the foregoing remarks, the results of the land revenue administration were generally least satisfactory. The Lieutenant-Governor would like to know the reasons which led the Collector of this district to shew the great leniency he did to the defaulters.

In order to obviate the difficulties in the preparation of schemes for the improvement of Government estates which arise from the transfers and consequent temporary local ignorance of District Officers, the Commissioner has ordered, with the approval of Government, the preparation of programmes extending over a series of years.

The road cess demand, current and arrears, aggregated Rs. 10,73,837, and collection Rs. 9,99,941, or 98·9, of the current demand. The arrear collections were very good everywhere save in Pabna.

The working of the Public Demands Recovery Act calls for little comment. Excluding the district of Jalpaiguri, the mere issue of notice appears to have been comparatively fruitless. The least progress in the disposal of the cases was made in Pabna, which the Lieutenant-Governor can only assume to be due to inefficient supervision on the part of the Collector.

The working of the Bengal Tenancy Act as regards those sections which are under the control of the revenue authorities is striking, because in some cases it appears to be not working at all. The appraisement of produce, the notice of intention to resume abandoned holdings, the commutation of produce rents, the registration of improvements, or the aid of the Collector in the acquisition of a village site, are provisions of the Act, which seem to be wholly dormant. It would be interesting to know whether the evils, to remedy which these provisions were made, are not now existent, or are obviated by other methods than a recourse to the Collector.

7. Wards and Attached estates.—The charge of one additional estate was assumed in the year. The current demands of rent were Rs. 2,09,855 and collections Rs. 2,02,271, or 96 per cent. The balance still exceeds the current demand, and little improvement has followed from the emphatic orders of Government conveyed in last year's Resolution. The condition of all the estates in Rangpur is unsatisfactory, and the Commissioner has reported that poor management is one of the contributory causes. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the Board have taken measures which will ensure an improvement during the present year.

8. Excise: Stamps: Income-tax.—The income from excise failed to reach that obtained two years ago, though it was slightly above that of 1897-98. The incidence in the five districts in the plains varied from one anna two pies to one anna five pies per head, which is much lower than in most other Divisions. There was a falling off in the income from country spirits and opium, the latter being due to a smaller consumption. Excessive rain caused a smaller area to be planted with ganja, but the outturn per acre was much better, and the total outturn was nearly the same as last year.

The increase in civil cases led to an increase in the income from stamps for court-fees, copies, and court paper, but there was a decrease under each of the other heads. In the case of non-judicial stamps it amounted to Rs. 27,000.

The returns for the last three years are as follows:—

YEAR.	Court-fees.	Copies.	Receipts.	Non-judicial.	General.	Court-paper.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1896-97 ...	10,02,000	57,000	44,600	4,16,000	19,000	22,000
1897-98 ...	+72,000	-4,000	-16,000	-29,000	-1,000	+ 0
1898-99 ...	+11,000	+3,000	-1,000	-27,000	-3,000	+2,000

Thus, though the total remains pretty constant, the items have undergone considerable modification. It is probable that the renewed prosperity has been the cause of the great falling off under the head of "Non-judicial stamps;" but that under the heads of "Receipts" and "General" deserves some explanation. The demand and collection of income-tax differed little from those of the preceding year, the largest balances being in Dinajpur, Bogra, and Rangpur.

9. Communications and Public Works.—Extensions in connection with the Cooch Behar State Railway and the Bengal Duars Railway were in progress during the year, and surveys for new lines in Rajshahi were being made. Rupees 94,177 were spent by District Boards in original road works and Rs. 1,91,743 on repairs, but no important scheme was undertaken by them.

Much progress was made by the Public Works Department in repairing the damages caused to public buildings by the earthquake of 1897.

10. Education.—The percentage of boys of a school-going age who attended school was 18·6, and the number was absolutely higher than in the two previous years, though relatively lower than that of 1896-97. The Commissioner is of the opinion as regards primary education that something approaching the normal standard has now been attained, and that future fluctuations will depend more on material conditions than the spread of the desire for education. There was a slight increase in the number of girls at school. The average cost per head of all pupils was Rs. 5·3, and the total cost was Rs. 6,38,373. The contributions by Government and the District Boards and Municipalities were much lower than in the preceding year. A comparison of the numbers of the various classes of schools and their pupils with those of 1897-98 seems to exhibit, as elsewhere in Bengal, the tendency of vernacular education to lose ground, for the number of middle vernacular schools decreased from 132 to 127, and that of the pupils from 6,322 to 5,808. This decrease is emphasised by the prosperity of every other class of schools, and is worthy of the attention of those who are interested in education. The students of the Pabna Technical School were very fairly successful in the examination for sub-overseers; and the Rangpur Technical School is tolerably prosperous.

11. Dispensaries.—The number of institutions was the same as in the previous year, viz., 70, and the travelling hospital assistant was retained in Darjeeling. Two new dispensaries were opened in that district, but the Kalam dispensary in Rajshahi and the Sultanpur dispensary in Bogra have disappeared from the returns. Yet the number of patients increased, though the year was remarkably healthy, and the increasing popularity of the dispensaries among the humbler members of the community enhances their claims on the liberality of the rich.

12. Local self-government institutions.—The administration of the municipalities of Darjeeling and Kurseong is reported to have been efficient, but that of Bogra and Rangpur has been condemned by the District Officers. There was nothing in the history of the year to make it noteworthy. The District Boards meet with the usual praise as consultative bodies. Jalpaiguri was somewhat unfortunate in obtaining a useless probationary District Engineer.

13. Conduct of zamindars.—The zamindars of whom favourable mention is made in the Commissioner's report include His Highness the Maharaja of Cooch Behar, Maharaja Manindra Chandra Nandy of Cossimbazar, the Maharaja of Dinajpur, Rai Banamali Bahadur of Taras, and Radha Gobinda Rai Saheb. Only from Pabna are quarrels between zamindars reported.

The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to Mr. Nolan for his experienced administration of the Division during the year, and for the excellent report submitted by him, extracts from which are published for general information.

III.—WEATHER AND CROPS.

10. The following statement shows the rainfall of the year in the different districts, as compared with the average of the last five years:—

(a) Weather.

DISTRICT.	RAINFALL IN INCHES.
	Average of last five years from 1893-94 to 1897-98.	1898-99.
Rajshahi ... ..	52·94	71·48
Dinajpur ... ..	65·02	67·27
Jalpaiguri ... ..	134·84	130·44
Darjeeling ... ..	119·17	138·07
Rangpur ... ..	77·47	87·71
Bogra ... ..	62·13	81·34
Pabna ... ..	58·43	62·81
Total ... ..	81·43	92·32

The rainfall of the year was excessive in comparison with the average of the last five years in all the districts except Jalpaiguri. The Deputy Commissioner of that district observed as follows:—

“The rainfall in August was insufficient, and there were several breaks in it in that month, which retarded the transplantation of the Haimanti paddy to a considerable extent. In September it was excessive. The result of this unequal distribution of the rainfall was that the outturn of the crops did not generally come up to the normal.”

In regard to the quantity of rain I do not find any real deficiency in Jalpaiguri, where it was one-third more than in any other district in the plains. One hundred and thirty inches indicate an ample supply of moisture, and the deviation of five inches from the average is, under the circumstances of no consequence.

The distribution of rain during the monsoon season was as follows:—

MONTH.	RAINFALL IN THE RAJ-SHAHI DIVISION.
	Normal.	Actual in 1898-99.
	Ins.	Ins.
May ... ..	8·89	7·43
June ... ..	16·97	17·32
July ... ..	18·32	16·37
August ... ..	15·29	14·21
September ... ..	13·43	21·46
October ... ..	4·58	5·90

It will be seen from the above table that the actual rainfall in May, July and August was below the normal, while in June, September and in October it was above the normal. The excess in September was very marked, being 21·46 inches, against 13·43 inches. The general result was that during the monsoon period the actual rainfall in the Division was above the normal rainfall by 5·41 inches.

(b) Crops.

11. The following statement shows the outturn of the principal crops, as reported by the

District Officers:—

DISTRICT.	RICE.		Wheat.	Jute.	Tobacco.	Tea.	REMARKS.
	Bhadoi.	Hemanti.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	P. C.	P. C.	P. C.	P. C.	P. C.	P. C.
Rajshahi ...	105	120	110	78	75	...
Dinajpur ...	112	125	...	100	100	...
Jalpaiguri ...	69	92	75	60	85	75
Darjeeling ...	88	105	75	50	73	93
Rangpur ...	94	100	87	81·8	76	...
Bogra ...	112	118	...	73	87	...
Pabna ...	100	112	100	80	100	...

It will be seen that the harvests were generally favourable. In Jalpaiguri I think the estimates below the truth.

V.—MATERIAL CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

16. The material condition of the people depends on the outturn of the crops, on the price of food, and on the healthiness of the season. Wages are so uniform that the variations which occur under that head are of little importance in this connection. This year the crops were good, the price of food low, and the death-rate diminished: I infer that the condition of the people was much above the average. This is the general view: in Rangpur I found that the raiyats held that the earthquake brought with it a blessing—strengthening the rice and banishing sickness. I am surprised to find that the comparative prosperity of the people was not accompanied by an increase in the stamp or excise revenue. Similarly, it was noticed that the famine did not produce any great falling off under these heads.

VII.—PRICES OF FOOD AND LABOUR.

19. There has been a general fall in the price of all articles of food.

(a) Price of food.

The price of rice fell from about  $12\frac{1}{4}$  seers to 19 seers. The price of wheat and gram fell from  $9\frac{3}{4}$  and 10 seers to  $16\frac{3}{4}$  and 17 seers, respectively. This is, of course, the effect of the good harvests recently reaped. It so happens that even salt has fallen in price, except in Darjeeling. In this instance it is necessary to remember that the value of the rupee, by which we measure that of all other commodities, has been artificially raised in recent years; taken in gold, I doubt if salt has really fallen in price.

The rate of wages has not fallen with that of food. In five of the seven districts there has been no change worthy of notice.

(b) Price of labour.

The Rajshahi figures show some marked fluctuations, generally in the direction of increase, but they are so vague, as to be of little use. It is said, for instance, that a superior mason received during the last week in March from 5 annas 3 pies to 12 annas a day, a common mason from 3 annas 9 pies to 10 annas; the margin of difference being great enough to destroy the value of the statement. It is an inference from the figures that some inferior masons got nearly double as much as some superior masons. In Rangpur there has been some fall in the wages of superior masons, gharamis, blacksmiths, and boys, probably owing to the tendency to level down rates, which in that District were exceptionally high.

VIII.—MANUFACTURES AND MINES.

20. The manufactured articles used in this Division are imported, the equivalent being given in raw produce, such as rice, jute, and ten. This is the general rule, and I know of no tract containing eight millions of inhabitants in which the exceptions to it are so few. In the main they consist only of natural products of the Division slightly modified, as indigo and silk. The production of indigo is practically limited to Rajshahi, only a few maunds being manufactured in the district of Rangpur. The two small factories that exist in Dinajpur did not work during the year. The outturn of indigo in Rajshahi was 1,062 maunds, against 734 maunds and 29 seers in the preceding year. The yield of silk was 155,452 lbs., against 135,831 lbs. in the previous year. The outturn of jute hand-presses in Jalpaiguri and Sirajganj was 39,963 and 178,173 bales, respectively. Sugar is made in Jalpaiguri and Dinajpur and molasses are prepared in all the districts, being largely exported from Rajshahi. Endi-cloth, a coarse silk, is manufactured in small quantities for home consumption in Dinajpur, Jalpaiguri, Rangpur, and Bogra. Gunny-cloth and gunny-bags are made to a considerable extent in Dinajpur and exported to Calcutta and other districts. Satranjhes or cotton carpets are manufactured at Nisbetganj in Rangpur, but the industry is falling into decay. Brass and bell-metal utensils are manufactured at Budpara and Kalam within the Nator subdivision and in the Nilphamari subdivision, at Pachagar in Jalpaiguri, and in the district of Pabna. Sitalpati mats are made in Pabna. Beer and porter are brewed in Darjeeling.

21. The number of tea-gardens in the districts of Jalpaiguri and Darjeeling, the area under cultivation in acres, the gross yield in pounds, and the average yield per acre from mature plants are shown in the following table:—

DISTRICT.	Number of gardens.			AREA UNDER CULTIVATION IN ACRES.						Gross yield in pounds.			Average yield per acre from mature plants.
				Mature plants.			Immature plants.

(a) Revised figures.

In Jalpaiguri only three applications for lands under tea-lease rules were received, against 13 in the preceding year. The outturn of tea shows an increase. The average yield per acre of mature plants was 484.2 lbs., as compared with 516.6 lbs. in the previous year. The cause of this falling off has been attributed partly to the conversion of a large area of land under immature plants yielding leaf, but not accounted for, into the area under mature plants, and partly to the fall of the estimated outturn in consequence of unfavourable weather during the year.

22. The following statement shows the condition of cinchona cultivation in Darjeeling during the year of report and the two previous years:—

DISTRICT.	Number of plants.			Gross yield in pounds.

23. The Daling Colliery in Darjeeling is the only mine in the Division.

(b) Mines.

The outturn was 2,191·4 tons in 1898, against 1,356 tons in the preceding year, the total value being Rs. 24,233 against Rs. 14,883.

IX.—TRADE AND COMMERCE.

24. The trade of this Division is almost entirely with the metropolis, to which we send our agricultural produce, receiving in return manufactured goods, salt and kerosine oil. The following table shows the exports:—

25. The increase in the rice traffic is remarkable, not only with reference to the previous year, which was one of scarcity but also when the comparison is made with 1896-97 when three lakhs of maunds were exported, against over five lakhs in 1898-99. Dinajpur and Bogra are the only districts which export rice to any great extent. The other food-grains are of little comparative importance, but proportionately the increase in regard to them is almost as great.

26. The jute trade is in this Division more important than all other forms of business taken collectively. In 1897-98 the exports were—raw jute, 86,27,568 maunds; gunny-bags 6,392,409 number. In 1898-99 they amounted to—raw jute, 63,61,915 maunds; gunny-bags 2,998,660 number. The falling-off is much greater than I would have expected. The high price of rice at the season of sowing, and the abundant stock of jute induced many raiyats to prefer the former.

The export of mustard seed declined from three lakhs of maunds to one, cotton from 20,484 maunds to 4,391; silk from 4,290 to 3,805; the export of refined sugar almost ceased, that of unrefined sugar fell from 7,263 to 517 maunds. On the whole, the return of exports does not support the view that the year was a very good one for agriculture. It was favourable in regard to food-grains only, and in this Division other crops are of great importance.

There has been a marked increase in the value of cotton goods, twist and salt imported, presumably because the people were better able to afford such purchases. I do not know why the import of kerosine oil fell off. The increase under the head of gunny-bags is due to the greater export of rice packed in such bags.

28. The following statement shows the imports into and exports from the Division by rail, Nadia rivers and Canal with different ports of India :—

XIII.—CRIME.

			Net 943				Net 884				Net 59

There was a nominal decrease of 59 in the total amount of crime in the Division during the year under report as compared with the preceding year. Crime cognizable by the police decreased by 943, non-cognizable crime increased by 884—a change in the direction to be expected in a year of comparative prosperity, when men have less temptation to steal, and greater means for prosecuting their neighbours on account of real or fancied injuries. The increase in cognizable cases in Darjeeling and Rangpur is due to greater energy in prosecuting nuisances; these districts, therefore, constitute only apparent exceptions to the rule. Darjeeling, escaped the influence of the scarcity which so greatly affected the crime returns of former years.

The increase in non-cognizable and decrease in cognizable crime were greatest in Dinajpur, where it amounted in each case to 33 per cent. This district is the only one of the Division which is intimately connected with Bihar, and is influenced by the conditions prevalent in that part of the Province.

The following statement shows the number of offences reported under each class during the years 1897 and 1898 in the Division:—

CASES.	Cognizable.		Non-cognizable.
	1897.	1898.	1897.	1898.

Total	2,583	3,042	3,435	4,137
GRAND TOTAL	18,277	17,334	8,673	9,557

Every entry in this table indicates the effect produced on crime by a favourable harvest. There has been a diminution in offences against property, and it is most marked in the case of the minor offences cognizable by the police, that is to say, of theft, while offences of other kinds have increased.

The net decrease in the number of cognizable cases in the Division amounted to 943, against an increase of 2,800 in the previous year. The decrease was most marked in Dinajpur, where it amounted to 825. Of these, 114 were nuisance cases, the falling-off being due to a change of system in regard to prosecuting those who permitted cattle to stray. There has been in this district a very marked improvement in regard to crimes against property, both serious and minor.

Non-cognizable crime increased under classes III, IV, VI, and in offences under Special laws, and decreased in the remaining classes, constituting a net increase of 884, against a decrease of 1,242 in the preceding year.

37. The following statement shows the proportion of crime to population in the several districts of the Rajshahi Division during 1898:—

DISTRICT.	Total cognizable cases.	Population to each cognizable case.	Total non-cognizable cases.	Population to each non-cognizable case.	Total of both cognizable and non-cognizable cases.	Population to each case.	REMARKS.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Rajshahi ...	3,530	407	1,496	960	5,026	266
Dinajpur ...	2,510	190	1,299	1,141	3,809	389
Jalpaiguri ...	1,532	444	684	996	2,216	307
Darjeeling ...	1,544	144	1,164	193	2,698	82
Rangpur ...	3,653	565	2,227	927	5,880	352
Bogra ...	1,963	390	801	957	2,764	277
Pabna ...	2,602	523	1,896	717	4,498	302

This table gives results which in some respects are exactly the opposite of those which we might expect from the general reputation of the districts. Darjeeling appears to be by far the most criminal; Dinajpur is equally distinguished by its exceptional freedom from offences. The fact would appear to be that the number of registered cases is regulated not by that of criminals, but by that of Courts. Darjeeling contains far more Magistrates in proportion to population than any other district, while Dinajpur has less. In the south of the latter district, where the nearest tribunal is 30 or 40 miles away, it would be ridiculous to prosecute for petty nuisances,—for cutting grass on another man's land, and other such matters, which in Darjeeling do not escape police notice.

I observe that Rangpur and Pabna are comparatively free from cognizable crime, and that among the districts in the plains, Bogra is the worst.

38. To the review of the year 1898, it may be convenient to add the following statement showing the number of serious crimes in the several districts of this Division during the first quarter of 1899, as compared with the corresponding quarter of the previous year:—
